result which we predicted some weeks ago.

In Dublin, the headquarters of the central Committee of Control, many offenders gainst the food regulations meet with their deserts—though, doubtless, many escape. Prosecutions are made daily, and persons convicted of over-charging are duly punished. In this respect the Dublin police magistrates are real benefactors of the poor. The work of the local comlist, was fined £50 on account of the that some of the leading Dutch makers are building factories to take part in it. This is a direct result of the Government's fostering the nut-crushing industry here, instead of waiting until the Germans will once again be ready to assume, as formerly, the monopoly at Hamburg. This essential trade ought never to have been allowed to pass out of our hands. The shortage of sugar and margarine are both due to the carelessness of the past, a situation of which Germany took full advantage.

I see that the West End shopkeepers have been quick to provide for one difficulty arising out of the rationing of sugar. It is with some difficience that one nowadays drops in to tea at a friend's house-that is to say, if one happens to like sugar with that beverage. Your houses overnment's apology, says The Ti-The Government's apploagy, says The Times, for its decision to seize the British Museum for the offices of the Air Ministry is, as it was bend to be, half hearted and thoroughly uncorning. If no building in London is exempt from aerial attack, the contents of the Museum had better remain where they are in their own dry atmosphere. If the building is ecupied by the Air Ministry it, and all it contains, will at once become a legitimate target. That only part of the Museum is to be taken over makes no difference. There is a callouness and a reckleasness about the project which cannot but dismay even after three and a half years of European ruin. The commandering of Bloomsbury for military purposes, and of a portion also of the Natural History Museum for a branch of minor civit administration, comes as the culmination of a long-growing scandal. Our new bureaucracy has swellen to such wast proportions that even bonsing accommodation appears to have failed Count Weetarp, the Prussian Conservative Lader, delivered recently in Pomerania a speech which is remarkably characteristic of the present attitude of the Junkers. He began by complaining that the German public did not seem to be fully conscious of the enormous success represented by the conclusion of the armistice with Russia. It was purely a success for German arms, and "international dogmas had not seaured their victories on the Stockod, for which, the Bethmann Government spologised, in Galicia and the Bukowina, and at Riga and Oesel, Russia's first Provisional Government would not have been upset. When the Russian revolution broke out a wave of democratic suggestion went through all countries, and it was foolishly supposed that Germany fairing the last summer to the mistaken belief of Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg, that "account must be taken of the 'democratic changes, and, dilating upon the precessity for "a German victory and a German page," is said-All pronouncements in which we ave that we desire agreement and reconciliation with our enemies for good and noble, or even for doctrinaire, reasons are not believed or supposed and distingtion of the carriers wood.

The Times publishes the first of a series of articles on the Pan-Turanian movement—a movement of recent origin, which exalts the Turkish element above the other elements of Russia, Politically, it now suddenly becomes important, in view of the Russian collapse and the threat of German expansion on her western flank. There are, says The Times, sixteen million Turkish-speaking people on Russian territory, mostly in Ceutral Asia, as against eight million Turks in the Ottoman Empire. The aim of the Pan-Turanians, oberished by them even before the war, is to link up all the Turkish-speaking peoples in Russian territory twith a reinvigorated and reorganized Turkey. The Russian revolution gave them their chance. They see the prospect of a line of Mahomedan States, stretching from Kanan, through Bokhara to Chinese Turkestan, and from the Orus to Siberia. They hope that Turkish domination will mean German domination. We can see the connection between the Pan-Turknian movement and the negotiations at Brest-Litovsk. If Germany can absorb much of Western Russia and, at the same time, control Middle Asia through her Turkish instruments, she will have attained a position incomparably more commanding than that of any other Power in the Old World.

"TOADS UNDER THE GOVERNMENT HARROW."

One of our learned London magistrates recently put the case very tensely and truly. "We are all toads," he said, "under the harrow of a well-meaning Government." Some of the toads have expressed to me their doubts, even of the alleged good intents. But there is no doubt whatever about the harrow. In the midst of war abroad the Government are making war upon trade at home. They have restricted cur imports and exports. They may be necessary. It does not apply to coment for Holland; but, then, we deal in the coment class. We don't even touch Govern the coment class. We don't even touch Govern the buildings in Sakville street would be quickly raised from the ground—a pretty than this. SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST FOOD CONTROL.

This food control is partly a folly, partly a shann, but it is altogether a crime against the public, and especially the poor. (Hear, hear.) I say it has resized prices. I say it has loarded stocks. I say it has created artificial as well as real scarcity. I say it has profiteered. In addition to the excessive food taxes, so unwisely levied by Parliament, it has imposed charges on food which amount to illicit taxation. I say it has exacted public money. I affirm, and about this there will be no dispute, that it has been a blundering, ineffective, and costly administration. (Hear, hear.)
